The first class of the Civilian Police Academy will be held at 7 p.m. on Thursday, January 26 in the training room of the Public Safety Building. Instructed by members of the Holden Police Department, the academy is an opportunity for residents to learn about police work – its methods, legal restrictions and challenges. Topics covered will include criminal law and procedure, use of force and weapons, motor vehicle law and motor stops. Field trips to the Worcester County Jail and State Police Academy in West Boylston are planned.

Michael Donnelly, assistant professor of Criminal Justice at Anna Maria College will be a guest instructor. Any one interested in joining the Academy should call Police Chief George Sherrill at 508-829-4444 or email him at gsherrill@holdenma.gov.
