Holden police make gun bust

Five Holden police officers took part in a firearms arrest on Monday, January 28 around 10 p.m. after a "reliable source" informed the department that a suspect was coming to Holden and was illegally in possession of firearms, according to Holden Detective Albert Bourget.

Douglas W. Stebbins, 24, of Norridge Wock, Maine was arrested by Bourget, patrolmen Jonathan Santimore, Thomas Monahan and Timothy Sherblom and Lt. Donald Ball on Shrewsbury Street in Holden for possession of two firearms and ammunition without appropriate licensing. He was leaving the home of a friend when the arrest occurred.

Stebbins is on probation in the state of Maine for a felony, possession of Class B with intent to distribute, which bars him from acquiring a license to carry the Smith & Wesson 40-caliber and the 22-Caliber Walther found in his possession. Stebbins was also found in possession of ammunition for those two firearms, and had no firearms identification for those items.

He was arraigned in Leominster District Court on those charges on Tuesday, January 29 after being held overnight in Holden. He is being held on $ 25,000 bail and will be back in Leominster District Court on Friday.
