Pot use at school draws complaint

Holden Police are working with the Wachusett Regional School District to investigate a report of a custodial employee smoking marijuana at Mountview School on February 2.

The report came from another employee at the school. The employee allegedly seen smoking marijuana was ordered to leave school property and not return.

Holden Police Chief George Sherrill said he could not comment further on an ongoing investigation, but noted that possession of small amounts of marijuana is no longer an arrestable offense, but a civil fine.
